ABOUT PACIFIC METEOROLOGICAL COUNCIL

The Pacific Meteorological Council (PMC) is a specialized subsidiary body of the Secretariat of the Pacific Regional Environment Programme, established at the Fourteenth Regional Meteorological Services Directors meeting in Majuro, Republic of Marshall Island, July 2011 to facilitate and coordinate the scientific and technical programme and activities of the Regional Meteorological Services. The Pacific Meteorological Council replaces the Regional Meteorological Services Directors body and provides policy relevant advice to the Secretariat of the Pacific Regional Environment Programme Meeting on the needs and priorities of its member countries and territories in relation to meteorology (weather and climate) and related fields.

The Pacific Meteorological Council meets on a bi-annual basis. This will be the Second Meeting of the Pacific Meteorological Council.

CHAIRMAN OF THE PACIFIC METEOROLOGICAL COUNCIL (2011-2013)

Mr. Reginald White
Director, National Weather Service Office,
Republic of Marshall
Islands

Twenty (20) years ago in 1993, the Regional Meteorological Services Directors first met in Port Vila, Vanuatu to discuss how the National Meteorological Services can best be supported in order to effectively contribute to strengthening the resilience and security of the Pacific Communities, the very theme the 2nd Meeting of the PMC is based upon. The creation of the Pacific Meteorological Council was front and centre in these initial deliberations. Eighteen (18) years later in 2011, the 1st Meeting of the Pacific Meteorological Council was convened in Majuro, Republic of Marshall Islands and endorsed the Pacific Islands Meteorological Strategy (PIMS) 2012-2021 and the Pacific Meteorological Desk Partnership (PMDP), hosted and based within the Secretariat of the Pacific Regional Environment Programme (SPREP).

It is my hope that the momentum and partnership forged over the past two decades of meetings and collaborations culminating in the momentous achievements of the three key milestone in 2011; one, the establishment of the PMC; two, the endorsement of the PIMS; and three, the establishment of the Pacific Meteorological Desk Partnership; have provided renewed energy and desire to continue the strengthening of the National Meteorological Services in the Pacific Region.

While the PMC is our vessel of choice and the Pacific Desk a very capable Chief Mate for the journey ahead, the PIMS 2012-2021 should be our navigational chart towards future development of the Meteorological Services in the Pacific Region.

I thank SPREP for providing the support necessary to achieve these three key milestones. I thank the developed National Meteorological Services in the Region (Australia BOM, US NOAA NWS, MetService New Zealand, Meteo-France, and UK Met Office), the World Meteorological Organization, and our donor partners for their tireless and consistent support to the National Meteorological Services. The Support you've provided over the past years must be maintained and increased into the future to enable the implementation of the Pacific Islands Meteorological Strategy 2012-2021 in the Pacific Region.

To my fellow Meteorological Services' Directors and those individuals who have provided tremendous supports to the National Meteorological Services (NMS), I thank you all for the trust and support so kindly bestowed upon me as the Chair of PMC from 2011 to 2013.

Komol tata.

DIRECTOR GENERAL - SECRETARIAT OF THE PACIFIC REGIONAL ENVIRONMENT PROGRAMME (SPREP)

Director General
Director General, SPREP

The Pacific Meteorological Desk Partnership is an integral component of the Secretariat of the Pacific Regional Environment Programme and resides with the Climate Change Division. The Pacific Meteorological Desk Partnership provides secretariat support to the Chairman of the Pacific Meteorological Council, the Pacific Meteorological Council and its members. The 2nd Meeting of the Pacific Meteorological Council sets the foundation for the 'new perspective and look' of the Pacific Meteorological Services Directors after meeting for fourteenth sessions under the banner of the Regional Meteorological Services Directors. The Secretariat of the Pacific Regional Environment Programme is grateful to its members, donors, development partners, collaborating organizations and institutions for their continuous support to bring development to the National Meteorological Services in the Pacific region.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Pacific Meteorological Desk Partnership partners, the Australian Government - PACCSAP, Australian Bureau of Meteorology, Finnish Meteorological Institute, Meteo-France, MetService New Zealand, UK Met Office and, US NOAA National Weather Service for their continuous support and advice

I would also like to express my appreciation to the Steering Committee for the valuable advice and guidance on the preparation of the 2nd Meeting of Pacific Meteorological Council and the donors roundtable programme and agenda.

Our big thank you to all attending and participating in these meetings. I hope you will enjoy the meetings.

THEME OF THE 2ND MEETING OF PACIFIC METEOROLOGICAL COUNCIL

"Strengthening the Resilience and Security of Pacific Communities with an Integrated Approach to Weather, Climate, and Water Risks". Strengthening the resilience of communities is a crucial and vital step for saving and shaping lives and livelihoods for the Pacific Islands Countries and Territories with the threat of natural disasters. The most important capacities for addressing risks associated with weather, climate and water related hazards are found within the communities therefore the National Meteorological Services play a fundamental role in building resilience of the communities through monitoring, providing warnings and especially collaborating with key partners to disseminate information to communities both during events and to prepare for impending hazards related to weather, water, and climate risks.

Promoting an integrated and coordinated approach to observing and forecasting natural disasters is fundamental to strengthening resilience at the national and community level. Because the socio-economic costs and frequency of weather, climate and water related disasters mean that the Pacific Island Countries and Territories have a compelling interest to understand weather and climate to help communities prepare and protect themselves. The National Meteorological Services try to engage interdisciplinary teams made up of tropical cyclone warning system partners (forecasters, disaster managers, social scientists, and representatives from other user communities) to establish multiple levels of services that can communicate weather, climate and water information to be used by local communities with right context and in appropriate vernacular to help them to respond in a timely and appropriate way to real time natural disasters.

We anticipate the theme of the 2nd Meeting of the Pacific Meteorological Council will serve as a catalyst for focusing the attention of governments, development partners, Council of the Regional Organizations in the Pacific, collaborating organizations and institutions and the communities on the importance of the National Meteorological Services work in weather, climate and water service provisions.

SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES OF THE 2ND MEETING OF THE PACIFIC METEOROLOGICAL COUNCIL

- Facilitate coordination and net-working among Pacific Meteorological Council's members¹, development partners, Council of Regional Organizations in the Pacific, collaborating organizations and institutions relating to meteorological services in support of national development agendas.
- Facilitate discussions by the Pacific Meteorological Council members on issues related to the advancement of meteorological services in the Pacific which will contribute to the strengthening of community resilience; and
- Provide an opportunity to share experiences/initiatives and to monitor the implementation of the Pacific Islands Meteorological Strategy 2012-2021, and its linkages to the Pacific Climate Change Roundtable, the Pacific Platform for Disaster Risk Management and the development of the 2016-2026 Integrated Regional Strategy for Disaster Risk Management and Climate Change Adaptation & Mitigation.

EXPECTED OUTCOMES OF 2ND MEETING OF THE PACIFIC METEOROLOGICAL COUNCIL

- Guidance from the Pacific Meteorological Council's members on actions required for short term objectives to achieve goals of the Council, the Pacific Meteorological Desk Partnership and the Pacific islands Meteorological Strategy 2012-2021;
- Strengthened interaction and coordination between weather and climate services, disaster risk management and climate change programs and activities for the Pacific;
- Guidance and key messages from the Pacific Meteorological Council's members to be included in the 2016-2026 Integrated Regional Strategy to enhance disaster risk management and climate change adaptation & mitigation strategies for the Pacific; and
- Strengthened integration and coordination with development partners, Council of Regional Organizations in the Pacific, collaborating organizations and institutions.
